ENTERTAINING YOUR HOME

Entertainment. The word has many meanings, but when nestled inside your home “entertainment” takes on a world of its own. Creating a space where the family can come together doesn’t have to seem like an impossible task. In truth, it can be quite simple.

Every room in the house starts the same way – with an idea. So naturally, the first step in the process of designing your entertainment saga is to decide what you want out of it. Whether you’re looking for a theatre replica or a few small antique pieces to coordinate together, the Furniture Heartland can provide.

Go all out with a wall unit, a sleek and elegant console unit, cabinet system, wall shelving or free-floating wall shelving arrangement. Wall units take center stage for an organized look in a contemporary or classic style. For a beautifully designed piece of furniture consider a console; it saves space and you get to decorate or adorn it with colorful decorative accessories. A stylish console blends in with other room furnishings.

Tall media cabinets and free-floating wall shelves are flexible, movable and stylish. You arrange how you want them to look. Use for storage, accent with decorative items such as boxes, baskets and vases. There are wood-tone finishes that compliment your decorating style.

Television or movie night just goes up a few notches with an entertainment system that looks and sounds great – best of all, it is a convenient way to have fun at home.

As research says, home theaters have quickly become a must-have for practically every family. From the simple family room setup to a much more elaborate stadium-seating wonder, they’re all working toward the same thing. Comfort. Creating a comfortable and inviting environment will help bring all members of the family together.

When it comes to the technical decisions of creating the room, there are a few things to consider:

1. Location
2. Color
3. Lighting
4. Seating

If you have a room already designated for your entertainment devices, these technicalities may still apply.

Adjustments, no matter how small, can make a big difference.

For the larger “theatre-style” entertainment rooms your location is going to depend mainly on how much natural light the room has. A basement/den or attic/loft is ideal for entertainment rooms because natural light is limited and they provide more of a “nestled-in” feel.

You should give wall and floor treatments some consideration as well. Deeper and darker colors are ideal for entertainment rooms. Stick with colors such as brown, deep red or charcoal gray.

Dimmers also give a great touch and are fairly simple to install. This will allow you to set your own tone for the room, whether you’re snuggling up by yourself or entertaining a large group.

Seating is very important. Take your time and select a few pieces that will be comfortable for watching movies, etc as well as a table and chairs that can be used for games, etc.

There are several interior design tips online that can further help you create the ideal space you want.

An entertaining choice...
